

Advice Line

We can provide an independent, external Advice Line dedicated to providing a listening service for those who feel they are experiencing inappropriate workplace behaviour. Any listening service is designed to help facilitate actions to resolve concerns rather than targets feeling they must simply tolerate these behaviours. The routes to resolution under the organisations policy are explained and our specialist advisers help targets come to their own decisions about next steps. This is a confidential service, although anonymous data is collated to inform the organisation of emerging patterns and trends so that they may identify requirements for action. There are various service levels available in terms of response times and pricing.
